THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 9, 1864.

EVERY MAN TO HIS POST. In our ramarks yesterday evening, deprecatng the disposition to land generals to the skies when successful, and heap censure upon them square for the first insertion-and two follers and a when unsuccessful, we trust we were not understood to condemn the holding of all officers Local notices will be consegred at the rate of fifty str. | to a rigid responsibility, and when incompetent or inefficient, to deny the right of the public to animadvert upon that incompetency or ineffiolency. If any man accepts the position of an officer, he must bring to the discharge of its duties all his energy and powers. But our statement was, that the more success or failure or linen rags, white or colored, delivered at the of a general was no reason for landation on the one hand, or consure on the other. If every officer in the Confederate service believed like STONEWALL JACKSON, that he was but an instrumentality in the hands of Omnipotenes, destined to accomplish a specific work, and bent ally his energies to its fulfillment, we would hear of no officer being "behind time" in the execution of orders or too drun' to obey instructions. Every one has his p rt to play in the grand drama, whether he be citizen or soldier, private or officer. Nothing should deter us from discharging our whole duty to God and and renown. It is the time for honest, welldirected effort, and manly, determined action. Every man to his post.

> GHANT'S LAST FIGHT. The Richmond Dispatch says the battle of last Friday witnessed the most tremendous slaughter that has ever taken place on this con-Thursday, the 12th, as the slaughter of Thursday, the 12th, surpassed every other field of day, the 12th, surpassed every other field of carnage.

The hattle commenced for the possession of the Grape Vine, or, as it is sometimes called, McCleilan's bridge, over the Chickabominy. It is the same by which McCleilan withdrew his troops when they were defeated in the double battle of Cold Harbor and Gaines' Mill. Had Grant succeeded in obtaining possession of this bridge, he might have passed the Chickabominy and established himself in McCleil.

Lak's old fastnesses on this side. It was the object of General Lee to prevent him, and he secondingly took possession of and fortified.

The ground on which the battle was fought was the same with that on which the battle of 1862 was ther, bornes, fought. But the positions were reversed, we unprecedented alaughter, he constantly renewed the attack with fresh troops, sending his men up in columns ten deep, and, in great part, so runk that they knew not what they were about, and pressed on with the most reckless audacity. Nothing sould exceed the coolness with which they were received by our troops, who, standing behind their breastworks and suffering but little, shot them down by thousands, with as much deliberation as though they were firing at so many marks. At one o'clock the action ceased along the whole line, our troops having repulsed the enemy that they were the control of the cont or wounded, on the field. Gen. Luz afterwards ode over the field, and declared that the slaughter far exceeded that of the 12th of May. Many of the Yanknes were so drunk that they tunbled over our broastworks, and were either killed or made prisoners; others after firing their guns could not reload them. In a word,

Last evening we received direct intelligence from the other side of the river, that Banks had attempted, a few days ago, to cut his way down to his boats, near the month of Red river, and was met by our forces and whipped track most everely, and that our own army had been reinforced. This intelligence seems to be reliable; it comes from Capt. Rathiff, whose headquarters are in a danse cansbrake on the other side, from which he frequently emerges and gives the Yangese a great deal of trouble. OLD HICKORY.

To invite intercourse with one of the fragents of the late Union, and to ignore the political existence of the other, as a leading Lonion journal a few days ago informed us was his intention, would, therefore, in his case at least, be not only a departure from the strict neutrality which it must be his policy to preserve, but it would be a deliberate and gratuitons insult to the power which he can least afford to offend, and which alone in America has alike the wish and the ability to begriend him. Even that alliance between Mexico and the South, which with equal disregard of the circumstances and requirements of either, has been talked of by over-sealous friends, would not be so absurdly, pur-poseless and spicidal a step. We refer to this matter only because a stray paregraph in last Saturday's Globe has given a certain degree of currency to an idea which is, to say the least, not flattering to the tried sugnity of the French Emperor and the high expectations universally entertained of his imperial protect. The same subject is treated with remarkable clearness and breadth of view by nother of our London contemporaries, to whose generally just appreciation of American polities we only pay a deserved tribute by adopting

Yankee Generals much Discouraged. A correspondent of the New York News, riting from Grant's army, under date of the Sth May, says: The entire less in yesterday's fight is not less han 800 or 900 in killed and wounded. This is a boavy loss to sustain without any advan-tages gained, and is only another swidence of what we have set to encounter before the cam-paign is ended, and Richmond in our posses-sion, if it ever is.

The news from the different armies which are operating for the overshrow of the rebel capital, does not seem very encouraging. It was reported here last night that Sigel had been deteated in the Shanandoah valley, and had retected. The news from Butler is also rather liscouraging. He is represented an atid being in front of the enemy's attempted at Fort Daring, and that no nitsch on that place had been made up to last accounts. This news t ok us much by surpriss when it reached here, when it was reported he had achieved a decided victory over Beautegard and was rapidly advancing to ward Richmond after capturing Petersburg: Patting all this together and attending it up.
